Snowstorms Worst For Many Years

Heavy snowfalls in the Crows Nest Pass mountain region during the past month are causing big game animals to come down to the lower levels of the towns to seek winter forage. Deer, elk, moose and sheep can be seen almost every day feeding on the open slopes on the lower levels around the Pass.

During the past week a small herd of seven white-tail deer have been feeding daily on the southern slope between the Crows Nest Pass Municipal Hospital and the clinic, and several large cow moose and calves feed daily in the swamp along the highway from the hospital.

Moose, elk and bighorn sheep are seen daily near Crows Nest Lakes digging in the snow to get at the forage they can find under the heavy snowfall. The animals seem to graze on the side of windward mountains where continuous winter winds have swept away the greater part of the snow leaving some bare spots.

The animals also take advantage of these bare spots to sun themselves during the afternoon sunny periods.

Snow, some three feet deep on the level throughout the Pass is reported to be considerably heavier than in the higher mountain regions around the district and lumbermen state that some of the valleys have as much as 15 feet of snow in them. This heavy accumulation of snow makes it very difficult for the grass-eating animals to survive and many fall prey to the carnivorous type animals in the district.

Oldtimers in the Pass state that this winter is more like the old-time winters that were experienced in the early days of the Crows Nest Pass when winter started in November and continued right through until the end of March. These winters, the old-timers state, were real tough with five and six feet of snow and cold snaps of 50 and 60 below lasting for stretches as long as six weeks.

Many here recall the winter of 1946-47 when snow fell to a depth of six feet overnight, and many residents had to tunnel through drifts to get out of their homes.

Numerous caterpillar tractors, that were working at the mines in the Pass were put into service to clear the towns of the heavy snow.

After a week-long battle against the heavy snow the mechanical equipment began to show signs of winning when Nature dumped down another three feet of snow to completely isolate the Pass. Since that blizzard only a few cold winters were experienced, with snows up to three and four feet falling and the mercury dropping down to a shivering 40 to 50 below zero.

The present cold snap is reportedly one of the worst winters residents here have experienced for some years, but this cold snap has been broken with the invasion of the odd, short-lived Chinook, which everyone here looks forward to getting.

Prizes Awarded For Best Electrical Decorations

Winners of prizes for the best electrically decorated homes in Coleman, were awarded last week and were won by the following residents:

Marge Kubica, $10; Jim Atkinson, $8; Sam Sieracki, $4 and fourth prize of $4 was won by William Kosak.

The prizes are sponsored by the town of Coleman, who provide the cash as an incentive for local home-owners to decorate their homes with colored Christmas lights during the Christmas and New Year season.

A panel of independent judges make a tour of the town and select the winners.

Honorable mention of many of the homes was made by council, for, despite the extremely adverse weather conditions, local residents made an excellent effort at decorating.

Courtesy is one item everyone appreciates.

Calgary Power Ltd. Say "Thank You"

CALGARY—Christmas Eve was a gratifying day for Calgary Power when lights on the company Christmas tree sparkled to life for the first time, signaling the successful repair of the Wabamun thermal unit and the placing of the generator back into service on the system. Three repair men also made it back to England in time to spend the holiday with their families.

As the lights were turned on the 14-foot silver tree in the Calgary office, the effect was immediate and gratifying, for it had not been anticipated that repairs could be completed before Christmas. The unit tree has served as a reminder to staff and customers that voluntary reduction of unnecessary lighting would be necessary to sustain the crippled system during the evening peak load hours.

"Press and radio appeals, and the sympathetic response of officials of the City of Calgary Electric System to our emergency was quick and effective," said G. H. Milligan, public information officer. "Every possible measure was taken to cut peak requirements, and full agreement was received for the direction of appeals to their customers for voluntary reduction."

He added, "Our district staff have spoken of the wonderful and heart-warming co-operation of our customers all over the province."

In towns, villages, hamlets and farms Christmas lighting rarely appeared before 6 p.m.

Housewives re-scheduled their cooking and laundry tasks and everyone pitched in with a mass co-operative effort, so that existing supplies of power could be fairly shared by all.

Maintenance crews and operating staff had been on a "round-the-clock" basis since the breakdown on November 22nd. From Manchester, England, the generator manufacturer had flown out the Chief Designer and two skilled armature winders to take part in the repair.

The delay in the opening of Big Bend generating station at Brazeau, due to earth slippage occurring in November, and the failure of the third and largest unit at Wabamun had a cumulative effect of causing a near curtailment of power to the company's customers.

Through the major co-operative effort on the part of all inter-connecting utilities in the province, who fed their surplus power into the Calgary Power system, near normal service was maintained.

The City of Edmonton was able to feed 74,000 kilowatts, Canadian Utilities fed from three generating stations supply 25,800 kw, the cities of Medicine Hat and Lethbridge had available 14,300 kw, and 6,000 kw, respectively. West Kootenay Power returned a favor of a year ago and carried 17,000 kw. of the East Kootenay load, thus permitting East Kootenay to feed a like amount into the Calgary Power system. All feed-ins totalled 137,300 kw. and this vast inter-connection tied together about 60 separate generating machines.

Major industrial firms came forward to assist with voluntary reductions and re-scheduling of power loads. The extreme cold weather we experienced came as an assault and strained all the capabilities of the companies involved and added additional stress to the Calgary Power system.

The critical emergency is over, and Calgary Power anticipates that additional standby power will be available in January with the opening of the Big Bend Hydro station.

Canada Theatre

Dec. 16, 1964.

— Clayton Bricker —

With our children fully immersed in the disciplines, problems and achievements of their new school year, their parents in their Home and School Associations will be involved to varying degree in the educational process.

Some will have little cause for worry, some will have much cause and others may have thrown up their hands in defeat, feeling themselves out-witted at every turn.

To assist them to better understand and help their offspring the National Film Board has produced a series of films titled Ages and Stages.

The introductory subject presents a basic truth — He Acts His Age. This film examines the play habits of children from one to 15, shows the characteristics of each group and stresses that only if we really understand children can we effectively help them. The second is a study of behavior at two and three years, showing what to expect from youngsters of these ages and suggesting how parents can deal constructively with the problem they present. At four, the vacillation between infantile helplessness and vigorous self-assertion is seen, and at five the development of independence and the beginning of co-operation.

From Sociable Six To Noisy Nine the film looks into the meaning of various forms of conduct and suggests ways in which parents may guide and govern their children through an often trying phase of development. From Ten to Twelve children present an absorbing study of adults in the making. Much of their conflicting behavior is actually a normal part of the growing process.

The Teens is an appraisal of three teen-agers, two boys and a girl, in an every-day urban family situation. The age of adolescence is a time of adjustment during which the buoyancy of youth is molded into more mature forms of adulthood. Three specific teenage subjects complete the selection—Howard, the problems of an 18-year-old; Joe and Romy, 16-year-olds and, Who is Sylvia? the story of a 14-year-old and her friends.

These subjects can be readily borrowed and all are revealing of every-day situations in the rearing of children. They are absorbing as they illumine the endless variety of response from children as they grapple with their unfolding world.

Here are three important reasons why it will pay you to renovate and redecorate your home now!

1 SKILLED MEN ARE AVAILABLE—NOW!
Although more and more building is being done each winter, exterior construction does slow down during the cold weather. As a result, home improvement contractors and skilled craftsmen seek out the smaller interior jobs that they are unable to handle during the summer. You benefit—with skilled workmanship by experienced tradesmen when it's most convenient to you!

2 DISCOUNTS AND LOANS ARE AVAILABLE—NOW!
To create incentives that will balance their sales and keep their staff employed throughout the year, building supply dealers run winter sales. These special discounts help you renovate and redecorate at the lowest possible cost. You'll find your bank a good place to visit, too—for low-interest Home Improvement Loans under the National Housing Act: up to $4,000.00, with up to ten years to repay!

3 MATERIALS ARE AVAILABLE—NOW!
When building slows down, materials become more readily available. Result: Irritating delays in completing your job because of late delivery of supplies are eliminated!
There's no doubt about it. Winter is the very best time to spruce up your home (and your place of business)—quickly, efficiently, inexpensively!

For advice and assistance call your National Employment Office

Everyone benefits when winter work is increased. DO IT NOW!
